

PRESIDENT TALKS ON OLD ISSUES, WILLKIE CHARGES IN REPLY

Declares Issues of 1932, Not 1940, Discussed.

By The Associated Press
HARBORCREEK, Pa., Oct. 24.—As Wendell L. Willkie said he had a "defining half hour" last night, he also had a "defining half hour" today in the "defense" of the third term candidate. He spoke over an NBC radio broadcast from his train, halted in the industrial area a few miles outside Erie. His broadcast was an answer, he said, to President Roosevelt's campaign address at Philadelphia last night.

The President's speech, he said, "was a masterpiece of evasion." He said the materials for national defense were obsolete, he said, because he discussed the issues of 1932, not the issues of 1940. Willkie said he voted for Mr. Roosevelt in 1932 and that he was in favor of social gains, recited by the President. However, he said, he wanted to improve those gains. Continuing as the New Deal administration has, he said, would lead down the road to bankruptcy.

Some Not Recognized
He said he did not recognize some of the "falsifications" Mr. Roosevelt said he made in the campaign. He said he did recognize the point about Mr. Roosevelt "telephoning" to Hitler before the Munich pact, and pointed out that he, Willkie, had acknowledged previously he had made a mistake.

Mr. Roosevelt, he added, did not telephone—he "telegraphed" Hitler. The President, Willkie said, was trying to violate a tradition of 150 years, and yet, Willkie added, "offered not one word" in defense of his attempt. Mr. Roosevelt, the Republican candidate continued, opposed deposit bank insurance—although he pointed out the insurance act as one of the achievements of his administration.

Willkie declared Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich) was the man largely responsible for putting into the banking act of 1933 the Deposit Insurance feature. "Another interesting claim by the third term candidate," Willkie said, was in connection with the employment of men in national defense industries. It was a tragedy, he said, that it was defense industries which brought such unemployment and quoted Mr. Roosevelt as saying in 1938 that such employment was not substantial.

Calls It "Fool's Gold"
He also quoted Mr. Roosevelt as having said recovery based on armaments was "fool's gold," and added "I agree with him."

He proposed to build defense materials, too, if elected president, Willkie said, but he said it was necessary to build our normal industrial economy, that there would not be deflation when the defense program was tempered off. He proposed to do this, he declared.

Taking issue with Mr. Roosevelt's figures on recovery, Willkie said the "history of his failure in the relief rolls of this country." Nothing the third-term candidate can say, he said, can discount the fact there are 9,000,000 men out of work.

Willkie said Mr. Roosevelt promised to supply work for the youth of America, then asked why he had not done so in his years in office.

Questions Unanswered
In Chicago the other night, Willkie said, he put certain questions to Mr. Roosevelt which the President did not answer. He said the 1932 Democratic platform promised a balanced budget and lower governmental expenditures, but expenditures had risen by billions and no attempt had been made to balance the budget.

"Mr. Third Term Candidate, tell the people if Wendell Willkie believes that part of the record," Willkie declared.

He turned to other parts of the 1932 platform, said the New Deal administration had not followed its promises and repeated his direct question to Mr. Roosevelt.

"Mr. Third Term Candidate, tell the people if Wendell Willkie believes that part of the record."

Referring to the President's address last night, he said Mr. Roosevelt said this country would not participate in foreign wars and added he hoped this "pledge" was remembered longer than the

ASHLEY HUSKER WINS TROPHY

Floyd Gale of Ashley, Delaware county, winner of yesterday's state shock corn husking contest, is shown (left) as he received his trophy from Ray Kelsey, representing "The Ohio Farmer," magazine which sponsors the annual contests. Gale is a railroad worker and husks corn as a hobby. He defeated 19 other county husking champions.

Community Fund Drive Over Half Way To $31,000 Goal

Total of $17,014 Listed at First Report Meeting; May Go Over Top Friday.

Quota	$31,000
First Report	$17,014
To Raise	$13,986

Marion's 1940 Community Fund shot over the halfway mark at the first report meeting at the Masonic Temple last night, with workers listing more than 2,100 contributions for $17,014.

With only $13,986 left to raise before the scheduled close of the campaign next Monday night, J. E. Oliphant, general chairman, appealed to the workers to raise another $7,000 for the second report tonight and it possible to reach the goal $31,000 by the Friday night report.

Enthusiasm ran high last night as the approximately 100 workers present heard team after team report sums unusually large for so early in the campaign. The campaign has been on since Monday morning.

54 Per Cent of Goal

The size of the first report, 54 per cent of the goal, takes added significance when it is recalled that last year only $8,800 or 29 per cent of the quota was reported on the first night.

Campaign leaders were especially pleased that the first report was over half the goal, since they had announced publicly that they were pointing their efforts toward 50 per cent by the first night.

Tonight's meeting is scheduled for 8:15 at the Temple. The third report will be Friday night and the fourth and final report will be Monday night, both at 8:15 at the Temple.

Leading the parade of divisions last night was the public school group, managed by Supt. E. E. Holt, who reported 79 per cent of the quota, $7,917.50. For this achievement, the public school campaign workers won the honor of riding on the fire department's hook and ladder wagon from the Temple to the courthouse where they presided over adjusting of the Community Fund thermometer.

Reports of this and other divisions are given in detail later.

Workers Praised

All the workers won high praise from Mr. Oliphant and from Frank Zoll of Anderson, Ind., campaign director.

"A whale of a good job" was the way one leader expressed his satisfaction.

The meeting opened with music by Pop Sarver's Jamboree Gang from Battle, O., who happened to be in town to entertain in connection with the state corn husking contest. Featured was a performance by Earl Sarver, styled as "Ohio champion on the bass viol."

Songs were led by Howard Summers with Morris Kline at the piano, opening with "God Bless America."

Rev. J. R. Dallas of Oakland Evangelical church, pronounced invocation.

Mr. Oliphant, starting the business session, remarked that "it's good to get together here once a year and resell ourselves on the good we can do for Marion—and the good Marion can do for us."

He stressed the idea that in a community fund drive, the solicitors aren't asking for donations but are selling something—"selling the things that Marion stands for."

Attendance Prizes
Before the reports were given, attendance prizes were distributed with Rev. Dallas, Major Joseph Heard of the Salvation Army, William Runhart and Louis E. Michel officiating. Winners of the prizes, donated by various companies, were Elmer Weimer, Mrs. E. O. Smith, Francis Donaldson, Mrs. Virgil Dye and Mrs. L. A. Shields.

Mr. Zoll, introduced by Mr. Oliphant, spoke briefly, praising the enthusiasm of the workers, but expressing some concern about the attendance. He called special attention to the work of the downtown and professional division.

He urged the workers to try to have their quota by Friday night or at least be close enough to it.

SHIFT OF WAR TO SOUTH SEEN AS NEW GOAL

Atlantic and Mediterranean Sea Trade Believed New Target of Axis.

BULLETIN

By The Associated Press
BERN, SWITZERLAND, Oct. 24.—Marshal Philippe Petain, chief of state of France, left Vichy today, according to word reaching diplomatic sources here, to go to Paris where it was believed he would sign a new French-German agreement superseding the existing armistice accord.

The news was first received through diplomatic channels because correspondents and officials at Vichy were under strict orders to give no details of the marshal's departure, his destination or the purpose of his trip.

Vice Premier Laval also left today for Paris.

By The Associated Press

Adolf Hitler was reported aiming today at a campaign to break the shackles of the British blockade by shifting the main theater of the war to the Mediterranean and attacking Britain's "life-line" trade routes in the south Atlantic.

With the Nazi invasion song "We Are Sailing Against England" now apparently muted by RAF assaults, the German fighter was said to be planning a two-fold winter strategy:

1. Italy and Spain would attempt to seize Britain's historic rock fortress at Gibraltar and crush British sea power in the Mediterranean.

2. At the same time, Germany and Spain would smash at British trade with South America and, via sea link with India via the Cape of Good Hope, using Spanish ports and airfields in the Atlantic and the Canary Islands as bases.

Concessions To Nazis

Informed French sources said Hitler and French Vice Premier Pierre Laval, in secret conversations in the last 48 hours, had virtually soured an agreement whereby the Vichy government of vanquished France would give the Rome-Berlin axis the use of naval and air bases in Africa, Syria and unoccupied France in return for certain concessions.

The naval bases would include Dakar, capital of French West Africa; Toulon, on France's Mediterranean coast; Casablanca, in French Morocco, and Bizerte, in Tunisia.

As a reward, these sources said, Germany would release all French war prisoners—estimated at 2,000,000 men—and would move the frontier of unoccupied France north from the present Tours-Swiss border line to the Seine river.

Laval returned to Paris today with Premier Marshal Philippe Petain's answer to Hitler's proposals for a Franco-German rapprochement, and Spain's Generalissimo Francisco Franco, who conferred with Hitler on the Spanish-French frontier last night, was on his way back to Madrid.

Oriental Developments
Amid these developments in Europe, apparently concerned "trial balloons" were floated toward peace in the three-year-old struggle between Japan and China.

In San Francisco, retiring Japanese Ambassador Kensei Horiuchi was quoted as saying a peace agreement lacking only "final official action" has been

Crowd Packs Station To Bid Farewell To Marion Troops

Estimate 1,000 On Hand as Guardsmen Leave for Year's Training in Mississippi.

Marion bade goodbye this morning to its men of the 166th Infantry, an outfit that was noted for valor in the Rainbow Division of the first World war which was raising 22 years ago today. A crowd estimated at 1,000 persons—wives, sons, daughters, mothers, fathers, sweethearts, aunts and uncles, Spanish-American war and World war veterans, and friends of the men—lined the Union depot platform for last farewells as the men left for a year's training at Camp Shelby near Hattiesburg, Miss. Automobiles lined Center street and Park boulevard for blocks and occupied all available parking lot space.

The 166th is the last of the Ohio troops of the 37th Division to leave for Hattiesburg. The exodus started a week ago yesterday and with today's contingents the total of 166th men in camp will be 75 officers and 1,100 enlisted men. The 166th men also are the last of approximately 9,000 Ohio National Guardsmen to head south, no longer National Guardsmen, but U. S. soldiers mobilized on call of President Roosevelt.

Union Co. Men Leads
At the head of the regiment, which includes Marysville, is Col. Heiman C. Doeringer of Marysville who was captain of Co. E during the World war.

Major General Robert S. Beightler, 37th division commander, indicated yesterday that troops at Camp Shelby are expected to move into permanent quarters by Dec. 1. The Associated Press reported. He urged that letters to Ohio soldiers show the army post-office number, "A. P. O. 37" in the address, along with the name, organization and rank of the addressee, and "Camp Shelby, Miss."

There were lumps in many throats, tears in many eyes, but all in all it was a brave farewell in Marion this morning.

The six Pullman coaches, baggage car and kitchen car pulled in on the west Chesapeake & Ohio railroad track at 8:50, five minutes behind scheduled departure time, and at 8:55 the men of Co. D and Headquarters Detachment, 3rd Battalion, were on their way south, leaning from car windows to wave.

A few girls clung to their sweethearts' hands until the train began to move, and some of the relatives rushed to the windows to hand in packages of cakes and fruits, but for the most part the large crowd stood silently.

Word for Draftees
"I haven't any word for the boys in the draft, except to wish them good luck and to hope they don't get too killed on a campaign," Capt. H. L. Taylor said as he stood on the platform looking over his men of Co. D.

"This is the toughest part of all, this saying goodbye," said Lt. Charles C. Whysall of Headquarters Detachment.

Officers of both companies said they had thought by having the men follow the usual departure procedure of marching from the Armory to Park boulevard and giving them time there to say goodbye, that the last-minute leave-takings, which are the hardest part of going away, could be avoided.

But it was plain that the officers and their men were touched by the turnout.

In the crowd on the platform were 40 ninth grade boys from Central Junior High school and their guidance instructor, Mark L. McKirtick, former technical sergeant of Headquarters Battalion.

Mr. McKirtick holds an honorable discharge from the United States army, granted when he did not pass the physical examination last week in Mansfield.

"I wanted to see the men off and I thought it would be an experience for the class so I just brought them all along," he explained. "I wanted to go with the men, I wanted the training and I know I'd like the army life," he added.

Shouts of "Good Luck," "Good-bye," "Please write," filled the air a few seconds before the train pulled out, but when it began to move the crowd grew silent. When the baggage car had passed the Center street crossing, the men, women and children dispersed quietly.

The reporter saw only a couple of girls break down and sob. Mothers dabbed at their eyes with handkerchiefs, fathers blew noses and there were many eyes glistening with unshed tears, but it was a brave crowd.

Other Units on Train
On the train, which stopped at Delaware to pick up the anti-tank platoon there, and at the Parsons Avenue yards in Columbus to pick up Co. G of the 166th from Lancaster, were 80 men and four officers of Co. D, 11 men and two officers of Headquarters Detachment, a communications unit.

The men will travel over the Chesapeake & Ohio railroad to Lexington, Ky., where transportation will be transferred to the Southern railroad. The train is scheduled to arrive at Hattiesburg at 3:35 tomorrow afternoon.

Sleep at Armory
The men spent last night at the Armory, where they have been quartered since earlier last Wednesday, with the exception of the mess crew of Co. D which spent the night at the kitchen car in the railroad yards.

They were up at 5:45 this morning, made a final check to see that all personal property was properly stowed, that all state-owned property was under double lock in the Armory base.

SMITH DENIES PETRI CHARGE

Defends Voting Record on Dies Probe and Defense Before Audience Here.

The records of two speeches and his vote regarding the Dies committee and national defense measures were the answer of Congressman Frederick C. Smith to assertions of his political opponent, Kenneth M. Petri, who charged that he "voted against the Dies committee and also voted 100 per cent against all vital bills for defense" when he addressed a meeting sponsored by the Women's Republican club last night at Central Junior High school.

Mr. Petri, Democratic candidate for Eighth district representative, had assailed Congressman Smith's record in voting on defense legislation in a meeting at Democratic headquarters here this week and also at a meeting in Crawford county earlier in the month, according to a report carried in the Gallon Inquirer and quoted by Congressman Smith last night.

Refers to Record
Congressman Smith told his listeners if there was any doubt in their minds as to how he voted to write to the clerk of the house. He quoted his opponent as asserting that he had voted against the Dies committee and also made a scathing attack against the committee. "I voted both times for the Dies committee; it is a matter of record; I made two speeches on the committee, both are on record."

"I did say," Congressman Smith said, "that the Dies committee would not have to leave Washington to find Communists, and I criticized the committee for not

OPENING DAY'S EVENT WON BY ASHLEY MAN

Takes Shock Title; 20 Compete Today for Standing Corn Championship.

By BOB BYRD
After watching 33-year-old Floyd Gale of Delaware county battle his way to the Ohio championship in the shock corn division yesterday, an estimated 30,000 followers of the state husking contests turned today to the competition that will result in selection of a standing corn champ to represent the state in national competition next Wednesday at Davenport, Ia.

Today's event was definitely the drawing card, the crowd far outnumbering the estimated 15,000 on the grounds yesterday. Contest officials and highway patrolmen figured there were at least twice as many on the grounds at noon today as at all yesterday, and a rough count of automobiles also supported this estimate of a 30,000 crowd today.

Traffic jams, which were only momentary yesterday, developed rapidly this morning and couldn't be cleared quickly because of unbroken streams of traffic pouring in from every direction and bottlenecks at the two entrances to parking fields.

Equal to Past Highs
Contest officials were elated with the turnout. They figured today's crowd was as large as the turnout at any state contest in recent years, and yesterday's crowd of 15,000 was far greater than the usual first day turnout of past years when nothing but machinery demonstrations were on the opening program.

They predicted the shock and standing corn contests will be held on separate days in the future because of the satisfactory experiment in the Marion county event, the first in which both contests were not held on one day.

In today's lineup of 29 huskers for the standing contest was an imposing array of talent. In addition to last year's champ, who automatically was given the right to defend his title, there were two winners-up in past state contests, one former state shock corn champion, nine others who had been in state competition before and seven who were competing for the first time in state events. Two brothers were among the contestants and the uncle of the 1939 champ was among the title seekers.

One Ex-Champ
John Feehan, 34, of Henry county was the only former state standing corn champion. He won the title for 1940 honors. He won his crown by shelling through knee-deep mud in Delaware county last year, husking 1,509.75 pounds of corn. His victory 4 years ago earned for him the right to enter national competition in Kansas.

Today marked his third try in state competition. Although he was definitely playing the role of favorite, and as such, faced the prospect of being hampered by a larger gallery of enthusiastic followers, he was out to prove that champions can repeat in successive years. Feehan, who is married, operates his own farm.

One of his most spirited challengers was T. J. Feehan, 43, of Wood county, his uncle. T. J. Feehan, or Ted, as his close friends call him, competed in two previous state contests, finishing as runner-up in 1937 and winning the right to compete in the national by virtue of that performance. He won the Wood county title this year by husking 2,041.3 pounds of corn. In his bid for national honors three years ago he placed fifth. That year the national trials were held in Missouri.

Marion Co. Entry
Marion county's champion, Earl Speece, 33, of a mile west of Kirkpatrick, was making his sixth effort to land top honors in a state contest. Eight times a winner of the Marion county crown, he completed in the Ohio trials on six previous occasions, finishing as high as third in 1932. Speece husked 1,902 pounds of corn in winning his eighth county crown. His record in the county trials earned him thirteenth place in the list of qualifiers.

Another Big Threat
Another former state runner-up in today's contest was Lester Galloway, who won the Van Wert county title by husking 2,300.8 pounds of corn. He finished second in 1935. His current county record was the best compiled by any county champion and in 1935 he represented Ohio in the national event in Indiana. That year a world's record was set, an Iowa husker by the name of Carlson husking 4.5 bushels to set a mark that never has been closely approached.

Galloway was not on hand for the drawing of numbers when contestants received instructions from officials this morning. It was reported, however, that he was on the grounds. His number, 13, was drawn for him by Ray T. Kelsey

INSTRUCTIONS GIVEN DRAFT BOARD CLERKS

Utmost Care Urged To Eliminate Chance for Errors.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—Ten pages of minute instructions were sent out today to forewarn the clerks of 8,500 local draft boards against errors that might cast a shadow on the outcome of next Tuesday's national draft lottery.

Stressing again the need for "absolute accuracy," the manual of information for local board clerks, sent out from national selective headquarters, said:

"However unintentional and innocent an error may be, it is always possible that registrants and their friends may charge that the local board and members of its clerical staff are unjust."

Designed to accelerate preparations for the lottery, the pamphlet gave detailed instructions for shuffling and serial-numbering the registration cards of 17,000,000 young men who enrolled for the lottery last week.

Enough numbers, from one upwards, will be drawn in the lottery to cover the largest number of registrants in any one local board area, and men will be called to service in the order in which their numbers are drawn, unless deferred.

National headquarters announced that, in cooperation with the army's surgeon general, it would collect statistics on the health of draft-age men to be used as another weapon against disease.

St. Mary To Invade Mansfield Tonight

Tobin Recovered from Injury in Time for Tilt with Madison; Irish Expect No Pushover Despite Record.

MARION ST. MARY'S crippled grid combine embarked late this afternoon for Mansfield Madison for the sixth encounter in the eight-game Irish schedule. Only hopeful note to come from the Saints' football camp was the announcement that Pat Tobin, a regular lineman who has been idle because of a cracked collarbone, was pronounced ready to go tonight.

Tobin got the green light from the squad physician and his return should please Coach Bernard Berens, particularly since the Irish lineup has been riddled by injuries since the Fosteria St. Wendell game. Still idle are John Robbins and James Daum, while Jim Pfeiffer and Ted Schuler are expected to see a limited amount of action tonight. Another blow to the Irish chances came yesterday when George Shoup, guard, left classes because of an infected leg.

Followers of the team who intend to take in the game should have no trouble finding the Mansfield Madison home stadium. It is located on U. S. Route 42, the Mansfield-Ashland road, at the east edge of Mansfield, and can be reached by taking U. S. Route 30-S into Mansfield, which joins there with U. S. 42. It is approximately 42 miles.

Coach Al Fendricks' Madison crew will be seeking its first victory against the Saints, but a look at the record indicates they will be far from a pushover. They've been defeated by good teams — New London, Wooster, Denison, Tiffin Junior Home, Norwalk and Ostrava, Denison, with an unblemished record extending back into last season, lays claim to being the state's outstanding "small town" football team; Wooster defeated Ashland, 13-0, Norwalk faced Gallon, 19-12, Tiffin Junior Home beat Lima South, 20-6—all of which indicate that St. Mary may have a tough time of it.

All Is Forgiven
Mansfield Madison hit the news early this year when Coach Fendricks suspended eight regulars for allegedly pilfering silverware from a Wooster restaurant during a grid trip. That's all been forgiven now and they're back in uniform and at full strength for the Irish invasion.

"I Pay the Boxers More," Says Mike, Replying to Fight Monopoly Charge

By DILLON GRAHAM
Associated Press Sports Writer

SOME fast authorities say Promoter Mike Jacobs operates a monopoly in boxing. Just the other day the Maryland boxing commission directed a move against the "New York boxing monopoly" in general. The commission, saying it was "time to stop the lying up of boxers and smash monopolies," declared Henry Armstrong's world welterweight championship vacant. Baltimore promoters had been unable to obtain Armstrong to box there. (Armstrong later was dethroned by Fritzie Zivic.)

Jacobs just smiles at the monopoly talk. "I pay the fighters more, that's all," he says. "Other promoters could get them too if they could raise my ante."

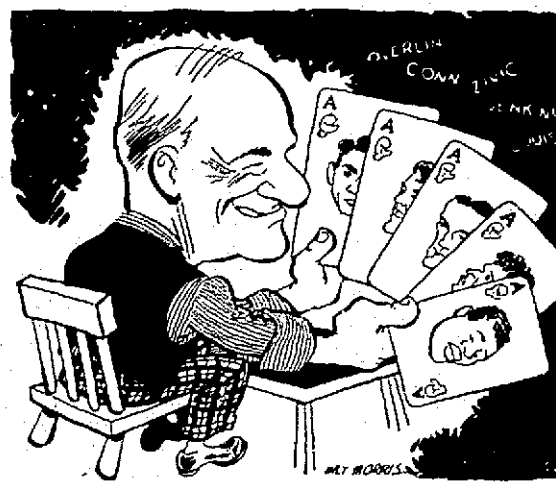

Mike admits to agreements with several champions and contenders. He says boxing is a business and he is in it to make money. He has to risk his own money whenever he stages a fight. If the fight loses money he must bear the loss. He figures that if he does this, builds up fighters and gives them an opportunity to win championships and become valuable property he must protect himself by agreements with them to regain his original investments and cash in on something he has developed.

'Better Draw'

Jacobs says boxers like to work for him because they know they can draw bigger gates in New York; that they are certain to be paid; whether the fight is a financial success or not and that there will be no "inside maneuvering." Jacobs is in position to stage the big crowd-drawing fights here because he has leased Yankee Stadium, Madison Square Garden, the Polo Grounds and the Garden's Long Island Bowl.

Mike says that what priority he may have over fighters' services will be lost just as soon as someone else comes up to offer them more money for bouts.

Jacobs only wants to use any one fighter two or three times a year. The rest of the time he can fight anywhere he pleases, Jacobs says. However, Mike doesn't like for fighters with whom he has agreements, to take on a bout outside New York which Mike thinks would make more money here. The fighters readily agree with him on this. Jacobs points out that Celerino Garcia defended his middleweight title twice—against Glen Lee in Hawaii and against Henry Armstrong in California—before he worked for Mike here, and lost it to Ken Overlin. He also says that more than three-fourths of Armstrong's title fights were outside New York. Mike had nothing to do with Armstrong's fights against Arizmendi and Garcia in California or against Rodrick in London.

Theater Parallel?

Jacobs rates boxing as an amusement business and so, hearing the monopoly cries against him, he wonders why the theatrical people in other towns don't hop on the Shuberts for staging their plays and musical comedies here rather than in other cities. He thinks there is a parallel. He has built up the best business in the biggest town and sees no reason why he should be attacked for his success.

NEW YORK, Oct. 24 — New fangled stuff: Golfer Jug McSpadden has been given what amounts to a life time contract by Boston's swank Winchester club... ## CORNELL STILL TOP U.S. GRID AGGRESSOR; PENN LEADS DEFENSE

Big Red Averages 466.7 Yards Per Game; Ohio State Offense Not So Good.

By GAIL FOWLER
SEATTLE, Oct. 24 — Those giants of the east—Cornell and Pennsylvania—dominate this week's batch of statistics as compiled by the American Football Statistical Bureau, and the welter of figures also indicates some interesting conclusions.

For the second straight week Cornell is tops in total offense—gaining both rushing and passing—with a 466.7 yard average per game. The Ithacans gained 584 yards on the ground and 816 in the air for 1,400 yards in three games.

For the third straight week Cornell was the nation's "passingest" team, averaging 272 yards via the air lanes.

Penn Is Second

Penn meanwhile bogged into second place in total offense with a 400-yard per game average and, the statistics say in the country's best rushing outfit with a 303.7 average per game.

Also, Penn for the second straight week boasted the best defense against rushing. Its opposition, while not too robust, grossed 147 yards against the unquaking Quaker forwards and lost 121 yards for the microscopic net yield of 28 yards, or an average per game of only 8.7 yards.

Cornell's Saturday foe, Ohio State, the 1936 total offense leader, has been playing tougher clubs and doesn't figure among the offensive leaders, its 252 yard per game average being well under the accomplishments of the first five. But the Ohio Staters rank fifth in passing defense, holding the enemy aerials to an average of only 34.8 per game.

How They Stand

The leaders, statistically were: Total offense — After Cornell and Penn come Detroit, 398.5 yards average per game; Lafayette, 387.5, and Arizona, 366. Rushing offense — Lafayette, which whacked the likes of Ursinus, N. Y. U., Muhlenberg and Gettysburg, rolled up 1,408 yards for a 367 average per game. Penn's 303.7 average is second, followed by Brown, 299; Detroit, 287 and Michigan, 276.

Passing offense — Cornell is way in front at 272; Princeton, which gained more than 300 yards in the skies against Penn last week, is second at 185.7; Marquette is third with 181.3, followed by the lolly-minded Yales, 148.3.

Total defense — Mississippi State, with a game missing has yielded an average of 87.7 yards per game. Then comes Navy, 72.3; Penn State, 81.3; San Jose State, 88.2 in six games, and Michigan, 98.5.

Teddie and Fred Holding Their Own

How Do Lyons and Fitzsimmons, ing Oldsters, Keep Their Stuff? Say It's Brains and Luck.

By PAT ROBINSON

International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK—With so many veteran pitchers gone this season and with so many others giving evidence of their string, it is a pleasure to note that we refer, of course, to that amazing pair of old Fitzsimmons of the Dodgers and Ted Lyons of the Yankees.

Lot Ready To Go
This season already has seen Wes Ferrell, Van M. Deen pass from the major league scene. There are a more ready to join the future. And all of it is more years younger than

How do they do it? Fred stronger than Lyons? Do they have easier on their take better care? What is the secret? We asked these general old time scouts coaches and invariably was the same: "They've got brains."

This seemed to explain it with one exception. Ted's brain and luck then wise: "Of course, any have luck to avoid broken arm over a years. That's where Wes Ferrell always pitcher but he was "Fitzsimmons and Lyons are both lucky and smart. They have brains to make their equipment and to husband their resources.

"Ever watch those fellows work when they're not old Fitz, for example. In spring training, he works like a rookie. He's never idle for a minute. He runs to wind in shape. He plays pepper games. Shags flies. Then when he has everything else ready, he begins his pitching.

But he doesn't stop training when the training season him all through the season and you'll note that he's time even on the days he's not pitching.

"And don't overlook the fact that Fitz always has had a double handicap. He has a tendency to take on weight and he throws a knuckler with everything he has behind the pitch. Lots of fellows figured Fitz wouldn't last long when he came to the majors but he fooled us all because he used intelligence in keeping himself in great condition.

"Lyons was a fast ball pitcher. One of the best. But when his arm went bad on him, did he quit? Not so you could notice. He lost his speed but he quietly went about schooling himself to make a better use of what he had left and he developed a knuckler and if you think he's a soft touch even now, just ask any of those American league sluggers. "These two know how to pitch. No waste motions. And they always know where and why they are doing it. It's a treat to watch them. I could name at least a dozen strong-armed you would be invincible if they knew half as much as either Fred or Ted."

It was suggested that the young fellows haven't the answer to this came like a shot: "No, a lot of them haven't got the intelligence even to say can't teach some of them because they think they all and they won't listen.

SPORTS THE MARION STAR

Here we see Ruth McIntosh (left) and Jean Knorr, Denver university cheer leaders, who predict the colorful policy of using feminine crowd pleasers will soon spread throughout the Big Seven Football Conference.

Last year the schools of the league entered into "a gentlemen's agreement" to abolish college drum majorettes and female cheer leaders, clad in eye-attracting, short-skirted uniforms. But the girls are at it again this year at Denver university and their costumes are trickier and showier than ever.
Objection to the girls was that "it isn't dignified for a college girl to display herself in a scanty uniform." A few football players complained the girls attracted too much attention from the game.

Daily Pattern for Home Use

A SLIMMING AFTERNOON DRESS

PATTERN 4473
For "do-dress" afternoons and "don't-dress" evenings, what could be more attractive than this frock made from Pattern 4473. It's an Anne Adams design for mature women who like to look slim and young. There's wonderful flattery in that center bodice panel that continues down to form one smooth piece with the wide, pointed waist-girdle. A row of tiny buttons might add further to the slenderizing effect. Now see the soft side bodice sections, gathered at the shoulders and above the waist! The skirt is nicely cut, with a single seam in front and a back panel for extra ease. Make long or short puffed or flared sleeves. And you might add lace-edged revers, included in the pattern.

Pattern 4473 is available in women's sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 takes 3 3/4 yards 30 inch fabric.

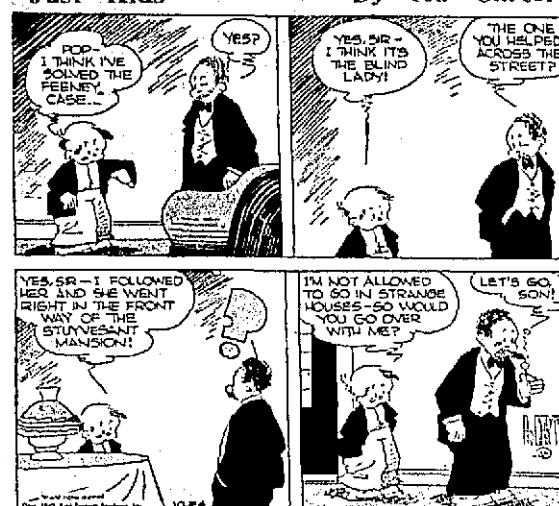

Send fifteen cents (15c) in coins for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly size, name, address, and style number.

Extra! Extra! Everything about the Anne Adams Winter Fashion Book makes extra news! Its vivid pages are filled with styles new as tomorrow's headlines—each in a sure-to-fit pattern. Smart sewing for the whole family circle, including workaday modes and party frocks... tailored two-piece and afternoon dresses... slimming matron styles and lively "small try" outfits... basic wardrobe for office and campus. Order your copy now! Book fifteen cents. Pattern fifteen cents. Book and pattern together, twenty-five cents.

New Ohio Guide Tells About Marion Area

634-Page Book Compiled by WPA Writers Just Off Presses; Pictures and Text Cover 23 Tours of State.

The Ohio Guide, a well-illustrated, 634-page volume in the American Guide series, is now being distributed by the WPA, telling the story of the Buckeye state in words and pictures. The work is just being made up, and it is made up partly by the WPA, and partly by the state and counties. The work is not overlooked, nor are the counties near here. If any one wishes to read first-hand about the state, the book sells for $2.75, and is available from the publisher, (Oxford University Press, 114 Fifth Avenue, New York).

for U. S. SENATOR

Harold H. Burton
Ohio Needs Him In Washington

If American liberties are to survive, a strong Congress is a vital necessity. Harold H. Burton has the strength of character that Ohio needs to voice its sentiments in Washington. His capabilities have been repeatedly proved in positions of public trust. He served with distinction in our State Legislature. The great city of Cleveland, which is normally Democratic, elected this outstanding Republican as its Mayor for three consecutive terms. The middle caused by the encroachments of executive dictation in national affairs must be straightened out. Ohio can do its share by electing Harold H. Burton to the U. S. Senate.

In 1912, Harold H. Burton began practicing law. He volunteered in 1917 and served as an infantry captain in the front lines. In 1928 he was elected to the Ohio General Assembly and, the following year, he was elected mayor of Cleveland. In 1935, 1937 and 1939, Ohio in a pivotal state in the times of stress. It can prove its sincerity for the national welfare by electing Harold H. Burton on November 3th.

Tour 7A on which WPA goes from Mansfield to Delphos on Route 30-S.
Marion, it says, is the "seat of Marion county since 1824 and home of the steam shovel." It lies in a region "in north-central Ohio where the great divide levels out. Compactly built, Marion has the appearance of an industrial rather than an agricultural center, although it is both. Factories are concentrated in the western part of the city; the main business district radiates from the courthouse, and residential areas dominate the other sections."
"Marion lives by encouraging the rest of the world to dig. Even the town's birth is associated with digging. A steady diet of salt pork had produced an extreme thirst in three pioneers who, after a long journey from Upper Sandusky, found no water in this vicinity. Jacob Foss, one of the trio, hewed a rough wooden spade with his ax, dug a few feet into a moist place, discovered water in abundance, and named the spot, with sufficient justification, Jacob's Well. It is generally believed that the importance of Jacob's Well caused the legislature to select this community as a county seat. The name of the community was changed in 1822 to honor General Francis Marion of Revolutionary War fame.

Industrial Beginning
The WPA researchers go on to say that "modern industry began in Marion when Edward Huber, a young German mechanic who came here in 1865, created the nucleus of the Huber Manufacturing Co., now widely known for its tractors, threshers and road rollers. The city's industrial history has been written by giant machines which rip up huge portions of earth, and by others which smooth out the bumps and wrinkles in highway construction. Steam shovel, tractor, and road rollers have carried the name of America into every section of the world and many foreign countries. Other plants produce silk goods, cigars, automobile parts, dairy products and ornamental glass."

The section also contains a brief account of the life of Harding, a description of the Marion Steam Shovel Co., and mention of the Harding home and tomb. Marion is also listed briefly in another tour.

Other nearby communities described in the book are:

Galion
Altitude 1,169 feet; population 8,883.
"One of many small cities in north-central Ohio in which agriculture and industry meet on main Street. The town was settled by German Lutherans from Pennsylvania in 1831. It remained rural in character until the middle of the century when several large railroad repair shops, buggy works, breweries, flour mills and other factories were located here. Toward the end of the century, a Galion man, C. H. North, inventor of improvements now embodied in the telephone receiver and the exchange switchboard, organized a company for the manufacture of telephone equipment."

MEN WANTED
Ages 18-33

and made Galion for many years a pioneering center for this industry. In recent years the nature of the industries has changed. Important products are road-building machinery, metal burial vaults, electrical machinery and supplies and men's and women's clothing."

Iberia
Altitude 1,155 feet; population 211.
"Site of the defunct Ohio Central College, was once the center of higher education in this area. Warren G. Harding was a student from 1879 to 1882. A well-known abolitionist stronghold, Iberia was the scene of an incident in 1860 which stirred the whole countryside. A posse led by a United States deputy marshal came here, to claim three runaway slaves. Iberians resisted, clipped the deputy's hair, thrashed other members of the party. The Reverend Mr. Gordon, president of Ohio Central College, an innocent bystander, was arrested as an instigator of the affair and sent to prison. Indignant townsmen won from President Lincoln a pardon for Gordon, who died soon afterwards."

Caledonia
Altitude 996 feet; population 528.
"The boyhood home of Warren G. Harding. South street just off the square. The house, of white frame with green trim, has been remodeled, but part of the older structure remains."

Kenton
Altitude 1,015 feet; population 7,539.
"The rural tone of the town is tempered by urbanity, and the residential sections give an exaggerated impression of size and affluence. Platted in 1833, the town was named for Simon Kenton, the Indian fighter.
"For many years Kenton was strictly an outlet for an agricultural region. Later it gained prestige as a railroad center and producer of iron products, principally ornamental fences to enclose the late-Victorian lawns and estates. With the removal of the railroad shops and a decline in the use of iron fencing early in the twentieth century, Kenton again became an agricultural center. In recent years a few small industries have located here and help balance the town's economy."

Galion
Altitude 1,169 feet; population 8,883.
"One of many small cities in north-central Ohio in which agriculture and industry meet on main Street. The town was settled by German Lutherans from Pennsylvania in 1831. McGuffey
Population 710.
"In the heart of the marsh region which includes about 25,000 acres of western and northwestern Hardin county. Deposited on the bottom of a glacial lake, now disappeared, the soil is friable, loam-like and so light that it is easily blown about by high winds that sweep this section. "Marsh rats," as those who eke out a living by weeding onions are called locally, live in primitive fashion in small, overcrowded shacks. Most of these folks are mountaineers from Kentucky."

Ada
Population 2,499.
"Prim, college town and principal trading center for northwestern Hardin county. It has a few small industries, but its daily life is dominated by Ohio Northern University, for which it furnishes a tranquil setting."

Marysville
Altitude 999 feet; population 4,030.
"Can be recognized for miles by its graceful courthouse spire standing gray above the masses of trees...platted in 1820 by Samuel Culbertson, who named the village for his daughter...A number of retired farmers live here in big houses...maples canopied the streets give Marysville an air of leisurely well-being and the shopping center is trim and progressive.
Attention is called to Marysville's part in the Harrison-Van Buren 1840 campaign and to the Ohio reformatory for women nearby."

St. Giles
Altitude 1,083 feet; population 1,871.
"Unusually handsome residences and public buildings distinguish this town...Settled in 1817 by Lewis and Ralph Hardenbrook. Their farm was in the center of what was probably the largest tulip-tree forest in the state. The settlement was called Whetstone until 1824, when it was renamed Youngstown. In 1832 the name was changed again...to honor Mount Giles, Virginia."
Attention is called to the Hydraulic Press Manufacturing Co. and the Victory shaft.

Cardington
Altitude 1,010 feet; population 1,192.
"Those residents are largely retired farmers, was founded in 1822 and named for an old carding mill...the town showed no special vitality until after the Civil War, when the lumber industry began to flourish. In recent years Cardington has found its early potential ways, and finds its present contentment in civic administration."

buying itself with some small industries, trading and the shipping of onions and celery grown on surrounding muck lands."
Considerable space is devoted to the Shrine of Our Lady of Consolation and the monument to Col. Crawford.

Upper Sandusky
Altitude 880 feet; population 3,889.
"Overlooking the Sandusky river and its broad valley from the level of a plateau...its streets are unusually wide, and great arching trees preside over them. It looks like a young town and it is, having been laid out in 1843. But Upper Sandusky is also, in a sense, one of Ohio's oldest towns, and few have been more widely celebrated."
Much space is given to its Indian lore and to its museum and Indian mission.

Morral
All that is said is a story about the famous "drunkard's wake" after the death of Ebenezer Roseberry, who specified in his will that his cronies were to stay by his body until they had consumed a barrel of whiskey. Described also are the prairie dock and compass plant, which shifts its petals with movements of the sun.

Delaware
Altitude 900 feet; population 8,513.
"A sedate Methodist college town and a trading center for farmers, lies on high, rolling land west of the Olentangy river...The Georgian Colonial design of the city hall, built in 1938, reflects the good taste of the community and a proud awareness of its New England heritage."
Attention is called to Ohio Wesleyan university, the Hayes birthplace and Perkins observatory; also Olentangy caverns.

Bucyrus
Altitude 1,005 feet; population 9,731.
"Except for its odd name, Bucyrus...is not unlike other county seats. A few blocks north of the square the Sandusky river, almost as narrow as a creek, wanders, apologetically through the town.
Its name is derived from Cyrus, ancient Persian king and favorite of one of the town's founders. The "bu" is supposed to suggest beautiful.
Attention is called to the Bucyrus Copper Kettle Works and the W. A. Riddell Co.

Oceola
Altitude 935 feet; population 232.
"Named for a Seminole Indian chief when a land company laid out the village in 1842. For a time it survived on lumbering, quarrying and lime burning...Nearby is a monument to "Frank, the War Horse," an animal which took part in an 87-day, 2,000-mile Civil war raid.

Crestline
Altitude 1,158 feet; population 4,425.
"Tree shaded Crestline was born of the railroads and still lives by them...So named because the founders thought it was on the highest land in Ohio. There were once two villages but "railroad shops were established, and in time the two villages touched and were united. Besides serving as a division terminal for the Pennsylvania and New York Central railroads, the town manufactures road-making machinery, stoves and furnaces, and women's clothing."

LaRue
Altitude 926 feet; population 698.
The book tells all about the Orang Dog Kennels and the Indians.
One part of the book also relates the interesting history of Route 23, running north and south through here. The book declares it follows the trail used by the Shawnee Indians 150 years ago on their journeys from Kentucky to Lake Erie.

In addition to these little sketches of towns and cities, the Ohio Guide contains seventeen essays on developments in Ohio life and history. In another section 19 Ohio cities have been given special discussion, as being typical of the diversity of the state.

Enrollment in College ROTC Gains As Students See Need of Training

By The Associated Press
ST. LOUIS—World events have shaped a new course for thousands of students—national defense.
The preparedness program, calling eventually for conscription of many of the students, has projected itself forcefully into campus life.
"How can we get ready for what's ahead?" is a question facing the college youth.

They are answering it with a great increase, in some cases unprecedented, in enrollment in units of the reserve officers' training corps. They are applying with enthusiasm through the pilot training program of the civil aeronautics administration.

And more and more of them are finding a solution in specialized studies to promote their usefulness in a national emergency.

A former ROTC corporal at the University of Missouri recalls that most students were only too eager to turn in their uniforms after two years of "squad" right in the required basic course. That, however, was before the European war brought home the necessity of strengthening the nation's defenses.

Take Advanced Courses
At the Columbia, Mo., school this year, Col. Lloyd E. Jones, in charge of the ROTC, reported more than twice as many applications for advanced training as in 1935. A total of 699 juniors—131 more than a year ago—were accepted.
Land grant universities, like Missouri, make military training compulsory for freshmen and sophomores. Other schools with ROTC units differ in their requirements, many of them offering in drill as an optional course. In all cases, the two-year advanced course leading to a commission is elective.

A nationwide survey of schools of all types showed today the increase in ROTC enrollment was general.
A growing demand on the part of women for training in specialized fields, such as laboratory technicians, was reported at Temple university, Philadelphia, where an official said, "quite a lot of this can be tied in with the prospect of more opportunities for women in such fields under the national defense program."

As could be expected, military schools reported an increase in enrollment. In some cases beyond comfortable capacity.
Virginia Military Institute at Lexington had 734 cadets, as compared with 721 last year, and the school had to reject 450 qualified applicants because of lack of room. The normal waiting list is 150.

South Shows Gain
The Citadel and Clemson, South Carolina's major military schools, both showed enrollment increases. A feeling among students that they might "get better jobs in the army if they have received prior training" was reported at New York university, where the ROTC had its largest unit in 21 years with 1,200 enrolled, 200 more than last year.

The three Pittsburgh schools all reported increases. The University of Pittsburgh from 900 to an unprecedented high of 1,203. Carnegie Institute of Technology from 510 to 687, and Duquesne university from 187 to 221. Rigid physical examinations at Pitt and Duquesne eliminated 25 per cent of the applicants.

SEIZED IN SPY CASE
Graduate of the 1931 class at West Point, Captain Rulo C. Romero, Filipino now with the 14th engineers in Manila, P. I., has been arrested in connection with an espionage plot against the U. S. military defenses in the Philippines.

Enrollment in College ROTC Gains As Students See Need of Training

By The Associated Press
ST. LOUIS—World events have shaped a new course for thousands of students—national defense.
The preparedness program, calling eventually for conscription of many of the students, has projected itself forcefully into campus life.
"How can we get ready for what's ahead?" is a question facing the college youth.

They are answering it with a great increase, in some cases unprecedented, in enrollment in units of the reserve officers' training corps. They are applying with enthusiasm through the pilot training program of the civil aeronautics administration.

And more and more of them are finding a solution in specialized studies to promote their usefulness in a national emergency.

A former ROTC corporal at the University of Missouri recalls that most students were only too eager to turn in their uniforms after two years of "squad" right in the required basic course. That, however, was before the European war brought home the necessity of strengthening the nation's defenses.

Take Advanced Courses
At the Columbia, Mo., school this year, Col. Lloyd E. Jones, in charge of the ROTC, reported more than twice as many applications for advanced training as in 1935. A total of 699 juniors—131 more than a year ago—were accepted.
Land grant universities, like Missouri, make military training compulsory for freshmen and sophomores. Other schools with ROTC units differ in their requirements, many of them offering in drill as an optional course. In all cases, the two-year advanced course leading to a commission is elective.

A nationwide survey of schools of all types showed today the increase in ROTC enrollment was general.
A growing demand on the part of women for training in specialized fields, such as laboratory technicians, was reported at Temple university, Philadelphia, where an official said, "quite a lot of this can be tied in with the prospect of more opportunities for women in such fields under the national defense program."

As could be expected, military schools reported an increase in enrollment. In some cases beyond comfortable capacity.
Virginia Military Institute at Lexington had 734 cadets, as compared with 721 last year, and the school had to reject 450 qualified applicants because of lack of room. The normal waiting list is 150.

South Shows Gain
The Citadel and Clemson, South Carolina's major military schools, both showed enrollment increases. A feeling among students that

County Draft Appeals Agents Get Instructions at Columbus Meeting

Members of District Boards Also Attend Session Addressed by Gen. Gilson D. Light.

County's three draft appeals agents received their instructions yesterday in Columbus at a statewide meeting of the Ohio National Guard. The agents will handle appeals of registrants under the selective training act.

The meeting will not start, however, until next month, after the agents have received their final instructions.

Some of the men naturally will be interested in the sale of real estate.

draft appeals boards in Ohio. Marion county appeal board is located at Lima and among the five members is Cyril T. Guthery of Lima.

Major Ray Allison of Columbus, executive officer to Adjutant General Gilson D. Light, head of the selective service board in Ohio, explained the appeal procedure yesterday.

Meanwhile, state draft headquarters hazarded the guess that only 1,200 or 1,500 Ohio men are expected to be called to service before Dec. 1. This is as the situation now stands, of course. Situations have a way of changing.

If only this small number goes by Dec. 1, it is expected that volunteers will fill the quota.

Another prediction yesterday was made by Gen. Light who said he fully expected the National Guard to stay away from home for two years because of unsettled world conditions.

ment, and that the entire building was spic and span.

At 8 they marched down Church street to Park boulevard, where they greeted their relatives and friends, and at 8:25 marched north on the boulevard, west to the depot and down the columned platform.

Headquarters detachment led, the men marching two abreast. Men of Co. D followed, four abreast behind their blue and white company flag.

One man standing on the platform remarked, "We used to march down with every contingent," referring to the days of the first World war.

City police, headed by Chief William E. Marks, himself a World war veteran, were on duty to handle the crowd and direct traffic.

Two Late Comers

There were two additions to the units this morning. Major Ben Kipler from the 145th Infantry at Keesville, assigned for transportation duty, and Private Andy Stapleton of Marion, who arrived last night from Indiana and went direct to the armory to report to Captain Taylor.

In each of the packs the men carried this morning were a shelter hat, bed sack, one blanket, shelter half pole, five tent pins, toilet articles, one pair of denim gloves, one pair of denim trousers into which they were to change on the train for wear during the trip south, mess pan, knife, fork and spoon, and a heavy overcoat "horseshoe" over the top of the pack.

Their individual equipment, mostly clothing, was packed in "foot lockers," small trunks 36 inches long, 17 inches deep and 21 inches wide, and put on the baggage car this morning.

All the federal-owned property, including machine guns, machine gun cars, helmets, .45-caliber pistols, extra clothing—including 40 extra overcoats of the older type wool Melfons — was loaded yesterday afternoon.

The state-owned property now under double lock at the armory includes lockers, desks, and tables. The armory, with its gray-painted brick walls was literally stripped. The building will be in charge of Carl F. Pollock of Marion, former Co. D man for 14 years, who was appointed to the job by the adjutant general's office in Columbus. Marion groups which have been meeting there have been listed with the adjutant general's office and will continue to hold meetings there, Captain Taylor said yesterday.

Farewell Party

About 350 friends and relatives were at the armory last night for a farewell party. The Non-Commissioned Officers' club gave a dance.

Among those who went to the armory to say goodbye to Captain Taylor was Major George T. German. When he left, after a hearty handshake, the captain said proudly, "He was my commanding officer in the World war."

The general feeling among the men last night was "Let's get going." They had been living in the bleak armory for a week, they had to face the goodbyes of their families and friends this morning, and they were getting anxious to have everything over and be on their way.

Boys and girls stood on the armory steps, family groups clustered in the entrance hall, men, women and children lined the drill floor where the dance was in progress. Cars were parked for blocks along West Church street and Olney avenue.

Captain Taylor's wife, two

Bridegroom of 24 Hours Is Among Departing O. N. G.

A bridegroom of less than 24 hours was on the train which pulled out of Marion depot this morning with Marion's units of the 168th Infantry for a year of training at Camp Shelby in Hattiesburg, Miss.

On the platform waving goodbye were his bride and members of two families.

The marriage yesterday morning at 10:30 o'clock of Miss Mildred Columbus of Tiffin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louise Columbus of 374 Chester street, and Private Jack S. Bevan of Co. D, 168th Infantry, son of Mrs. Calvin Jones of 185 East Mark street, was a whirlwind affair that left their families breathless.

They became acquainted last summer, were engaged and in recent weeks have talked of marriage. Their plans were discouraged by the families, who favored waiting until Private Bevan returned from training. Miss Columbus, who works in Tiffin and is home week-ends, and her fiancé resumed their talk of marriage last week-end and after a rapid exchange of letters she came to Marion on Tuesday to arrange the details of the ceremony. They told their families and yesterday morning Rev. Lawrence A. Wood of Trinity Baptist church read the single ring ceremony at the parsonage on South State street.

Present were the bride's parents, the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Richard Berry, sister of the bridegroom, and Mrs. T. F. Trickey, sister of the bride.

For her marriage the bride wore a powder blue crepe with black hat and black accessories. In the flurry of excitement flowers were forgotten. After the ceremony there was a dinner at the Columbus home.

The new Mrs. Bevan expects to visit several weeks and then go to Hattiesburg to join her husband.

Capt. H. L. Taylor of Co. D, 168th Infantry, was granted the privilege of an eight-hour leave yesterday. At 4 yesterday afternoon the leave was up and the bridegroom returned to the armory. Last night he and his bride were literally dragged into the center of the drill floor where dancing was in progress, and while the pianist played the Wagner wedding march, they were introduced. The bride and the two families stayed at the armory until it was ordered closed at 10:45. They were among the early arrivals this morning to see the units off—their attention devoted to Private Bevan of Co. D. daughters, his brother and sister-in-law and twin sons and friends were on the balcony, above the drill floor, watching the proceedings. The armory was ordered cleared at 10:45.

For the evening meal last night Pete Cutarelli of the Union Bakery sent over a huge decorated cake lettered "Good Luck Co. D," and Gene Hill of Hane avenue, a World war veteran, sent every man and officer in the units a pack of cigarettes.

This morning the Bowe Ice Cream Co. sent enough ice cream to the kitchen car to provide dessert for all the men at lunch today.

Fathers, Sons in Ranks

Two father-son teams are in the Co. D ranks, Captain Taylor and his son, Private Carlton W. Taylor, and Sgt. Lawrence Edgington and his son, Corp. Don Edgington. There are several pairs of brothers in both units, but Headquarters Detachment has three brothers enlisted, Corps. Lloyd and James Keeran and Private, First Class, Virgil Keeran, of Mt. Gilead.

Wednesday Night Club Opens New Dance Season

MEMBERS of the Wednesday Night Dance club launched their fall and winter season with a get-acquainted dance last evening at Schaefer's hall. New members were given the spotlight and all wore registration cards to get acquainted and they were also introduced. The dance program, played by Bob McMahon's orchestra included circle dances as part of the dance team.

The evening also marked the adding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Ray R. King, members of the host and hostess committee.

Decorations in the hall and appointments for refreshments were in keeping with the Halloween season. Sixty couples attended. Mr. and Mrs. John Peacock were chairman of the host and hostess committee, and assisting were Mr. and Mrs. George Alber, Mr. and Mrs. John F. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. King, Dr. and Mrs. F. R. Mann and Mr. and Mrs. Bert Brashares.

Splendid Cough Remedy Easily Mixed at Home

It's So Easy! Makes a Big Saving. No Cooking.

To get quick and satisfying relief from coughs due to colds, mix your remedy at home. Once tried, you'll never be without it in your home, and it's so simple and easy.

First, make a syrup by stirring 2 cups granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. A child could do it. No cooking needed. Then add 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex from any drugist. This is a compound containing Norway Pine and palatable guaiacal, in concentrated form, well-known for its prompt action on throat and bronchial membranes.

Put the Pinex into a pint bottle, and add your syrup. Thus you make a full pint of really splendid medicine and you get about four times as much for your money. It never spoils, and children love its pleasant taste.

And for quick, blessed relief, it is amazing. You can feel it take hold in a way that means business. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and eases the soreness. Thus it makes breathing easy, and lets you get restful sleep. Just try it, and if not pleased, your money will be refunded.

HEAD OF A F I UNION

HITS NEW DEAL POLICY

Cites Lack of Capacity To Conduct Government.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24 — James M. Duffy, president of the National Brotherhood of Operative Pottery (N.B.O.P.) and co-ordinator of the Wilkie labor forces, asserted in a statement today that "the New Deal administration has proved its lack of capacity in the conduct of the federal government."

Duffy's "statement to labor" was issued through the Republican national committee.

"We can not preserve our American way of living," he said, "by the continuation in office of an administration that has already proved its lack of capacity in the conduct of the business of government, and because of this obvious lack of capacity—which every citizen must realize to be the truth—it is but natural that we look with deep concern and apprehension at the ambitions of a proven incompetent administration to break the sacred traditions by seeking a third term."

35 DEEDS FOR REALTY FILED

Number of Transfers Ahead of Preceding Week and Year Ago.

Thirty-five properties changed hands in Marion city and county during the week ended Monday, according to 29 property transfers in the preceding week and 31 in the corresponding week last year, records of County Recorder Paul Fisher show.

Twenty-two mortgage loans were recorded, including 18 for $5,000 on urban property and four for $11,600 on farm land. In the preceding week there were 23 mortgage loans for $30,922, including 18 for $23,647 on urban properties and five for $7,275 on rural properties, and in the corresponding week last year there were 12 mortgage loans for $15,300, all on urban properties.

Last week, banks and loan companies made 16 loans for $27,420, all on urban property. Federal and banks granted four loans for $11,600, all on rural properties. Individuals made two loans, totaling $4,200, both on urban properties.

The property transfers follow: Home Federal Savings & Loan association, one Marion lot, $1; Home Federal Savings & Loan association to Earl M. Close and others, one Marion lot, $1; Marion Federal Savings & Loan association to Roswitha M. Williser, one Marion lot, $1; William P. Parratt to Anna Mae Crispin, one Marion lot, $1; Florence M. Briller to Laura M. Haas, part of one Marion lot, $1; Mary Brown to Bert Brown, undivided one-half of one Marion lot, $1; Marion Electric and Furniture Co. to C. L. ## BABY STAR OF 1940

Selected from Hollywood's "kindergarten class" of glamour girls, Peggy Diggins was named by panel of screen directors as one of the "Baby Stars of 1940." Peggy, Mount Vernon, N. Y., high school graduate and daughter of Paul Diggins, prominent Westchester county lawyer, will appear with Errol Flynn in "Footsteps in the Dark."

YOUR HEALTH

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

Home Aid in Arthritis

We have suggested that as a general platform and program for the care of the invalid with arthritis there wasn't any use saying "He should go to a hospital," or "She should seek a proper climate." In the first place, the economic condition of the average patient does not permit that; in the second place, if all the arthritic invalids went to a climate there wouldn't be enough beds or rooms to house them.

We believe the best general treatment for arthritis is some form of physical therapy—manipulation, heat, exercise—and that it is possible to devise simple home-made methods of applying these. It is quite possible to teach a home mother to give good massage. Of course, it should be done at first under the direction of a doctor or professional masseur.

Before describing that further, however, I should like to emphasize the value of something entirely different from manipulation—which is rest. In one of O. Henry's stories he made quite a point of the part that all the doctors he went to see advised "Rest and exercise." It isn't quite as contradictory as it sounds. Alternation of rest and manipulation in arthritis, with more rest than manipulation, is a key to treatment.

And rest is certainly one of the God-given remedies that was designed to be carried out at home. It is one of the obvious things in treatment that is so close under our eyes it is overlooked. Of course, I mean rest in bed with the affected limb at rest—in a cast, if necessary. I don't mean the kind of rest that is implied in the sentence, "Now, grandpa, you rest right here and all you have to do is answer the telephone and the doorbell."

The kind of massage best suited to arthritis is kneading, or deep rubbing of the muscles clear around the joint. Do not attempt to move the joint forcibly or when it is painful. A light, stroking movement over the joint itself may be used at times to relieve pain.

The deep kneading of the muscles in the region of the affected joint is designed to improve circulation, carrying away poisons and other deposits from the joints and making the muscles more active. There is always atrophy of the muscles around an arthritic joint, and they need stimulation. Since it is not always possible for the arthritic to move the muscles himself on account of ankylosis of the joint, the massage performs an ideal function.

At first, massage of an arthritic joint should be undertaken with wholesome respect, and performed gently and for short periods. As improvement occurs, the kneading may be done deeper and the time period lengthened. Flare-ups will occur sometimes and then the active manipulation must be stopped for a while. But there is always discernible a gradual and steady improvement if the procedure is properly carried out.

An electrically operated jig saw has been invented that weighs only 15 ounces and can be guided by one hand.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day. When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, sitting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headache and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smirking and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

BIRTHS HOLD EASY LEAD OVER SEPTEMBER DEATHS

66 Babies Born Last Month in City and County.

Births outnumbered deaths 66 to 47 during September, reports of Dr. M. M. Weinbaum and Dr. N. Sifrit, city and county health commissioners, show. Thirty-nine of the new arrivals were boys and 27 were girls. Dr. Weinbaum, city health commissioner, reported there were 39 deaths and 59 births in the city during the month. Boys outnumbered girls 36 to 23 among the new arrivals. Heart ailments were responsible for the largest number of deaths, resulting in nine, while five persons died from cerebral hemorrhage and four each from hardening of the arteries and cancer. Three deaths in the city resulted from kidney ailments, two from skull fractures and one each from infantile paralysis, diabetes, leg fracture, shock, typhoid fever, paralytic stroke, inanition, senility, peritonitis and arsenic poisoning.

Dr. Sifrit, county health commissioner, reported nine deaths and seven births in rural sections of the county during September. Four of the new babies were girls and three were boys. Two deaths resulted from each of pneumonia and kidney ailments and one death was blamed to each of cerebral hemorrhage, heart ailment and cancer.

THE ROAD TO SHANI LUN

By Ruth Mottet Hanson

YESTERDAY: Lynn Britton, beautiful American girl destined so far as she can tell to marry the Prince of Shan Lun, is at present dodging Chinese revolutionaries and trudging across the plain foot. Temu, her "escort," has lost his place in a storm, and now must guard Lynn and arrange to send their unwelcome companion, Peggy Telford, back to the coast.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE

Lynn turned to Temu.
"Do you expect to walk Peggy and me all the way to Delun?" He had relieved Chan of some of his burden.

"I hope I won't walk you all the distance. Your friend is leaving the first chance I have to send her back."

Lynn's shoulders squared. "I'd like to see you send her and keep me without unpleasant consequences to your government. I notice you don't always secure your own way."

He agreed. "If I had my way now, we wouldn't be here. But, since we are here—," he looked at her and smiled. She understood; he intended to make the best of it.

Peggy caught up with them in her absurd meanness and hung to Temu's arm for a while. They passed a woman and her old mother, the latter mincing along on little goatlike feet which were bound in remnants of the "good old days." They carried their possessions in bundles on their backs and herded ahead of them a blind girl carrying a younger child pick-a-back.

After crossing the wide plateau they came to a ridge of green hills. Temu stopped a tall, red-robed lama riding a tiny donkey. The priest lowered his feet, permitting the little animal to walk from under him and begin cropping the short green grass at the edge of the trail.

The lama explained that his monastery was located up a side canyon a bit and insisted that Temu and his party take refuge within the religious enclosure. The monks were Mongols and Tibetans, good fighters when they needed to fight and respected for the fact by the Moslems, who were inclined to leave them alone. They could send a fast messenger on to the Chinese military stronghold at Tulin with the telegrams Temu wished to dispatch; the monastery would be pleased by their presence.

Lynn suspected that Temu did not translate everything that had passed between them. He looked at the two weary girls and accepted the invitation, the monks turning to Lynn, bowed deeply and brought her his donkey to ride. It did not seem incredible to him, evidently, that a goddess should be met on the highway fleeing before the revolution.

The gesture touched and warmed her heart. Her thoughts flew to a woman in Palestine who had ridden a donkey, and suspecting a certain state of affairs, she gave the animal to Peggy. Temu helped her mount, and giving the little donkey a slap, sent him jogging up the path he had just come.

"You need the lift as much as your friend," he said mildly. "But since you are a goddess, I suppose you can do as you please."

Lynn told him she was glad he had learned one thing about her. "As you please within limits," he smilingly answered.

The monastery houses, with their flat roofs and ladders for mounting to them, climbed the canyon side in a way that reminded Lynn vaguely of a Pueblo village, except for the surrounding wall.

They were taken to an apartment in the grand lama's house near the upper wall, overlooking the rest of the enclosure. The several rooms opening into each other were clean and bare except for the stove, with its usual short-legged table, and the altar niches with their images and offering vessels.

In the largest room was a table set with food. The grand lama served them with tea, Chinese cakes, pickled bean pods, and dates. As he left, he knelt before Lynn and asked if she would bless him.

"Touch him with something," Temu suggested.
She picked up Peggy's parasol and touched him lightly. The simple, devout, old fellow turned and went out, his face shining with an inner light as it indeed he had been blessed.

Temu watched Lynn's eyes follow him, a strangely gentle expression on her face. "You see what it means to be the Tera," he said in a low voice. "To be loved by an untold number of people, never criticized, never questioned, never thought of except in love and devotion."

"It is wonderful," she admitted softly. "But I am quite sure that I am not worthy of anything like that."

"You are not the judge." Chan came in from the meal he and Bula had eaten in their own room and set about heating a basin of water. Bula followed, and in a corner brought out his knitting. The head lama returned with a living Buddha, a boy of seven or eight who had a ball on his wrist. Temu lanced the infection and bandaged it.

"He was born my cousin," the lama explained. "But he is the reincarnation of my elder brother who died eight years ago." Tears came to the old man's eyes. "I could not bear to see him die a second time."

"We'll take good care of this," Temu assured him. "and it will soon be healed." He turned and translated to the girls what the priest had said.

Lynn looked around at the people in the room, Peggy, Chan, Temu, Bula, the high lama, the little Buddha, and a griseous-geared attendant monk who had come in with the latter two. "I wonder," she asked in a mischievous mood, "if any of my former relatives are present."

Peggy giggled. "Bula may be a husband from a former incarnation."

He stares at you adoringly enough.
"If he were a husband he would probably be trying to order me around."
"You've said it!" Peggy returned with heartfelt agreement. Temu laughed. "You American girls. You need to be reborn Hindus some time and taught proper reverence and appreciation for husbands." He cleared the room of the rest of the men.

"Perhaps that's already happened to us once too often," Lynn retorted maliciously, "and the worms have turned."
"Two worms!" he hooted. Peggy burst into tears. "I want to go home!" she sobbed.

"We'll send you back as soon as possible," Temu promised. "A night's sleep will do you good," Lynn assured her, "and you shall have a bath if we have nothing more for a tub than a tea cup."

Chan managed to find a copper kettle and fill it with hot water. Many soft, padded quilts of Chinese satin were brought in to make a comfortable bed. Lynn stayed with Peggy, tucked her in, and sat beside her for a while afterwards.

"I suppose it will be just my luck to have twins," sighed Peggy. Lynn was enthusiastic. "That will be fun."
"For whom?" Peggy moaned. "For everybody. I always wanted to be twins myself."

Peggy turned her face to the wall and shuddered. "It seems to me that you get into enough outlandish predicaments as it is. Why double the liabilities? And why did I ever take you for a model?"

Lynn laughed and gave her a reassuring pat. "You've stopped imitating me now and gone me one better, darling. Or should I say two?"

"Leave me," Peggy ordered. "You're too darned cheerful!"
Lynn slipped into her coat and entered the courtyard. Temu came striding up the path towards her.

"Where have you been?" she asked.
"Sending off a couple of dispatch runners. Do you care to sit on the roof for a while?" She followed him up the ladder and dropped down against a chimney pot. He lay down beside her.

A spiral of smoke curled up from an incense bowl near them, dispersing the odor of juniper leaves for the demi-gods who nourished themselves upon sweet fragrance. Below, near the temple, a drum throbbed insistently.

"We must go in," she signed. He leaned towards her. "Has it been a happy evening, Lynn?"
"Heavenly. You've taught me things about companionship I've never known before."

A messenger returned from Tulin next morning with word that the telegraph line had been torn up for a long distance. No messages could be sent out. The revolution was spreading north into Sinkiang and west to the Tibetan border. Practically all trade and travel had ceased except for that of the fleeing refugees.

"That's that," said Temu. Peggy clouded up; Lynn looked grave. They were eating breakfast of tea and little cylinders of oaten bread baked by Chan on a stick over the coals. The abbot had sent them butter and dried fruits. Peggy turned to Temu.

"Now, what are you going to do?" she demanded.
"Whatever can be done," he answered lightly. "First, put a fresh wife."

He rose. "The lamas tell that refugees are beginning to come here. The monks of many of them are sick or injured. Lynn, you can help me. Mrs. Telford, some of the signs are rather horrible. I'll try to get some sleep," said Peggy. "I wish I could sleep until I got back to America."

"We'll be back by noon, promised, and accompanied down the worn stone steps to the levels below. To be continued

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Veritien's Tale Arouses Speculation as to the Identity of the Messenger Leslie Will Send to the Farmhouse

"Why the messenger, I suppose," Philip replied, and then he looked back in her chair. But she kept her eyes fixed upon her old friend's face.

"He did not ask me to give him my word or exact any oath as to the truth of his story," Mr. Veritien went on. "He told me coolly that dissembling would mean not only my ruin and Noel's, but death by guillotine, and he sketched the terrible fate if I disobeyed him, but he said that if I already had been asked to do it before the freezing point."

"I said that I was at liberty to go," Noel's father went on, "but he would know every move of mine until I entered the farmhouse—and afterward."

"And afterward," Lillian echoed thoughtfully. "Now whatever did he mean by that?"

"I don't know," Philip answered soberly, "unless he expected that agent of his to arrive very shortly after I did."

A Messenger Expected

"That's a thought," Lillian said, and then she flashed the oddest look at me, one that said as plainly as words, "I wonder if you're thinking what I am." Then she turned her eyes back to her old friend.

"Take it you haven't the slightest idea of the identity of this expected messenger," she persisted.

Mr. Veritien stiffened perceptibly, and his eyes showed resentment.

"My dear Lillian!" he said with something of his old flamboyance of manner. "I do not number people among my friends who possibly could be associates of Leslie."

She blew a saucy kiss at him, and grinned impishly.

"Don't be too sure, Phil," she advised, with what I knew was purposeful shyness. "In these times, anybody could turn out to be an international spy—if you know what that means, you're a better man than I am, Gunga Din."

He smiled reluctantly.

"Upon my honor," he said, "I know of no man among my friends who by any stretch of the imagination I could picture as an agent of Jack Leslie."

But before the words had fairly left his lips, I saw the infinitesimal start he gave, knew that Lillian had seen it also, and understood with me that some disturbing—though perhaps vague—and unconvincing—doubt of some friend had come to him.

"It really doesn't matter, now, Phil," Lillian said comfortingly. "When the messenger presents himself, then you'll know, for it would be stretching Old Man Conscience clear out of his gulluses."

500 CHILDREN JOIN IN SANDUSKY PARADE

Special to The Star

CRESTLINE, Oct. 23—The entry list of 500 for the Kiddies parade Tuesday was believed to be the largest since the inauguration of this feature of the annual Mardi Gras and Halloween celebration in Crestline. Headed by the Crestline High school junior band.

One dollar prize winners chosen were Dixie Caldwell and Carl Winemiller for the best dressed girl and boy; Betty Blasing the most comical girl, Doyle Bauer the most comical dressed boy. To Carol Margaret and her dog went the prize for the biggest pet; Dorothy Sampson, who carried a tiny dog, received the prize for the most comical dressed pet and Shirley Blum with a bantam rooster in a basket won for the smallest pet.

Bucyrus, Gallon, Crestline, Mt. Zion and Leesville High school bands, the Gallon, Mansfield and Upper Sandusky Legion drum corps appeared in the night parade.

"Fifth Column" Activities Chosen for First Community Forum Topic

W. L. Listerman, F.B.I. Officer at Cleveland, To Head Opening Discussion.

Problems created by the "Fifth Column" activities in United States will be discussed here Sunday afternoon when the Marion Community Forum association launches its third season of public discussion meetings.

The program will be at Edison Junior High school, starting at 2:30 p. m. and as in previous years will be open to the public without charge.

The discussion leader Sunday will be W. L. Listerman agent in charge of the federal bureau of investigation office in Cleveland, who is closely associated with the government's efforts to uncover and stamp out "Fifth Column" activities. Mr. Listerman has been in Marion several times in recent years and has talked to several service and civic clubs. Following the plan used during the last two years, the first hour of the program will be devoted to a talk by Mr. Listerman and then an hour will be provided for questions from the audience and for an open discussion of the topic. Officials of the forum said today they were disappointed by the audience's participation in meetings during the last two seasons and they are urging those who attend Sunday to take an active part, expressing their own views on the topic.

D. T. Milla, superintendent of the Marion county schools and president of the forum association, will preside.

A plea for those interested in the forum to take out $1 memberships in the association was renewed today by Edward J. Russo, chairman of the membership committee. Mr. Russo reported that the membership fees may be mailed to Robert N. Heininger, assistant cashier of the Marion County Bank and treasurer of the forum association or may be paid at the meeting Sunday afternoon. The forum, which has arranged five programs for the next five months, is financed solely by these memberships and at least $500 is needed to meet the expenses for the 1940-41 season.

NEW DEAL CAMOUFLAGE

Editor of The Star: During the time of the New Deal there have been many powerful arguments put forth against it by many of the ablest minds of this country, but the deadliest argument ever put up against the New Deal was lately made by one of the most fanatical and bigoted of New Dealers, who is also one of the fouziest intellects ever to pull down good money for a trashy column. The author of this bombshell was that masquerading Marxist and reckless peddler of class hatred, Jay Franklin.

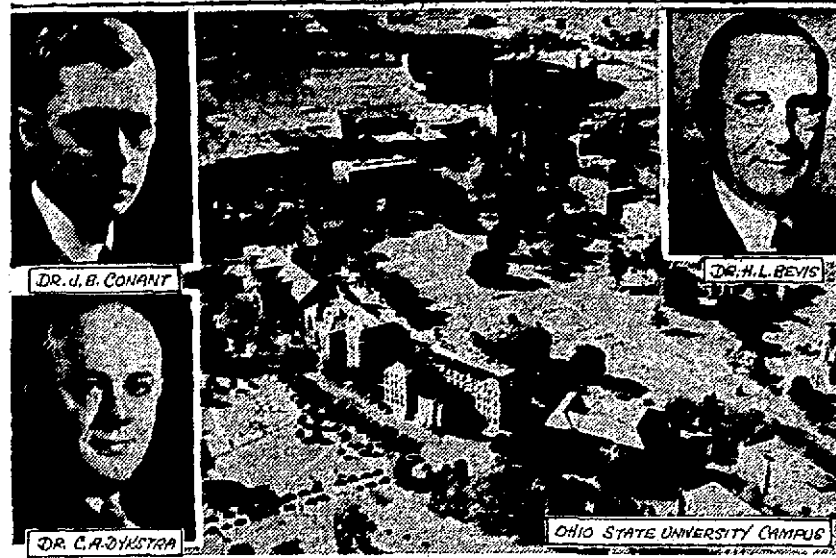

The bombshell so blandly tossed out by the jibbering Franklin is this: "There is no blinking the fact that from now on and for an indefinite period, we face the necessity for socializing our basic industries and our financial institutions." There can be absolutely no mistaking the meaning of that sentence by anyone who knows what socialism and communism mean.

Here, brazenly and unblushingly naked is the avowal of that purpose the New Dealers, including the Hyde Park aristocrat, have always so cleverly denied, except in those numerous writings and speeches which they have always believed were too intellectual for the "peepul" to comprehend. Here is a plain statement of the traitorous revolutionary aims of the Cohen, Corcoran, Ickes, Oliphant, Wallace cabal of which jibbering Jay Franklin is an acknowledged member, and for which he is an avowed spokesman. Taken together with the numerous articles which have appeared in these special spokesmen for the New Deal and those avowed enemies of the institutions of private enterprise and private property, the "New Republic" and the "Nation," the writings of Jay Franklin are the outstanding recorded proof of the real and utterly damnable intentions of the New Dealers.

If the American people actually knew that the national defense program is really being used as a vast camouflage behind which the New Dealers hope to carry out one of the most far-reaching revolutions ever plotted, they would never wait until Nov. 5 to destroy the brain trust camarilla. They would find it into oblivion instantly.

The arguments advanced in the day's column from which I quoted are a brazen insult to any intellect above the kindergarten level. When jibbering Jay Franklin argues that the pressure of events, present and future, will inevitably force the adoption of the schemes for which he stands, he makes the terrible mistake of ignoring the tragic experience of France, where she nationalized ("renscripted") is the New Dealers' term) her aircraft factories under the French New Deal of Socialist Premier Blum. And when he so plainly shows his blindness, wilful or unwilling, to the glaring historical fact that the complete socialization of private property in Soviet Russia has inexorably and inevitably resulted in the most savage and hideous tyranny ever imposed on many millions of enslaved human beings, he shows his absolute unfitness to be a moulder of the public mind. And when he further states: "In America the modest reforms of the New Deal will inevitably be expanded, under the pressure of events, until

O. S. U. Inauguration Set for This Week

DR. J. B. CONANT, DR. H. L. BEVIS, DR. C. A. DYKSTRA, CHAIRMAN OF OHIO STATE TRUSTEES, UNIVERSITY PRESIDENTS.

Dr. Howard Landis Bevis, seventh president of Ohio State University, will be formally inaugurated Thursday and Friday.

Joining with Ohio State in paying honors to the new president will be 250 representatives of American colleges and learned societies, including 75 college and university presidents.

Speakers at the inaugural proper Friday morning in the gymnasium will include President Clarence A. Dykstra of the University of Wisconsin, former Ohio State faculty member who has just assumed new duties as national draft administrator, and Dr. James B. Conant, president of Harvard University.

Herbert S. Atkinson, Columbus, chairman of Ohio State trustees, will conduct the induction.

Six of Ohio State's seven presidents have been natives of Ohio, and all have come from small cities or rural districts. Dr. Bevis was born in the Hamilton county hamlet of Bevis, and the first 20 years of his life were spent in rural districts of that county.

Now heading the nation's fifth university, Dr. Bevis has had a wide range of previous experience—as an attorney at Cincinnati, as a faculty member at Cincinnati and Harvard, as state finance director of Ohio and as a justice of the state supreme court.

He and Mrs. Bevis have one son, Murray, now enrolled as a sophomore in electrical engineering at Ohio State.

Classes will be dismissed from noon Thursday to noon Friday, in order that students may attend the inaugural.

PENSION PAYMENTS AT NEW PEAK IN STATE

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 24.—Tom McCaw, chief of the state division of aid for the aged, yesterday reported an October distribution of $2,885,341 to 130,318 old age pensioners—setting two new peaks for the Ohio program.

McCaw said the number of recipients showed a net increase of 1,735 over September, the pre-pension high, while disbursements, averaging $22.01, aggregated more than $43,000 over the previous month.

McCaw said that since January, 1939, more than 30,000 names had been added to the rolls—12,000 of them since the legislature appropriated an additional $2,000,000 for the division last June. He listed 1940 payments to date at $28,644,155.
